

Storm Drain Stenciling

Marking storm drains along local city streets to inform the public that all dumped and/or 'draining' materials go directly into our public waters – our streams, creeks, rivers, lakes, bays, and the ocean; where they can harm both wildlife and people. These drains do NOT take materials to water treatment plants first for cleanup.

Local youth perform neighborhood water pollution prevention storm drain stenciling

The stenciling effort pictured here is also supported by a Community Action Grant from the City of Sacramento Stormwater Management Program.
